Portugal Vila Nova de Poiares

Opening Speech

To the delegations of schools from Slovakia, Turkey and Italy

Welcome to our wonderful country, to our amazing town of Vila Nova de Poiares, in the centre of Portugal, but above all, to our excellent school.

It is with great pride that, once again, we welcome students and teachers from other countries, united by another Erasmus project, in this case related to the European challenges to save the climate and thus save the planet. It is in this exchange of experiences that several goals can be achieved, namely the need to contribute to a better planet and to a greater sustainability of resources.

Here, in Vila Nova de Poiares, you will get in contact with an environmental wealth. We are an eco-group and we continue to build a path that leads us to practices that respect the planet thereby improving our climate. I hope that all your goals are fully achieved. Enjoy our sun, our landscapes and our friendly and welcoming people. To our students, I hope you will take advantage of the opportunities offered by our school.

To all the students involved in this project, I hope you understand its importance, its contribution to a successful school, enabling the development of skills that make everyone full European citizens. May each activity be of a personal richness capable of making a difference in each person. Work, study, think and realise that the path to personal fulfilment is through these experiences.

To the parents and guardians of all of you, I would like to thank for the availability, sharing and help given so that these activities may have the desired success.

To the teachers involved, I would like to highlight their professionalism, dedication, effort and willingness to carry out these projects, because without them, it would be impossible to carry them out, especially with this quality.

Finally, but very importantly, I would like to thank all the headmasters of the schools involved, who, with all their availability, allow these projects to be carried out, giving the young people involved such an important life experience.

So, without further delay, I wish you all a nice week, good work and a pleasant stay.

28th, March 2022, The President of General Council, Ana Maria Lopes Batista
